STORM AT WALLISVILLE.

"Uncle Dan" McGary Tells of Its Effects at Mouth of the Trinity.

To the Editor of The Post.

Wallisville, Texas, September 9.—This morning we had here some moisture, it is true—something in excess of an ordinary dew—but it hardly reached the dignity of a flood. A strong tide up the river meeting a strong current down the river forced the water out and from 3 o'clock in the morning until long after daylight cliffs could be rowed over any of our streets. For awhile it did look threatening and our stout-hearted, strong-armed sheriff, Mr. L. H. Frost, carried Mr. McGary in his arms from the Ministry castle to the Wilson house, the latter being deemed the safer place. Being of an independent turn of mind, I declined to be carried, and crunched it across. Mr. Frost carried merely as an escort. About daybreak the water began to subside and went down almost as fast as it came up, and this evening any part of the town may be gone over with out boats or stilts. We were a little scared, but it is all over and the results in no way serious. In town no house was entered by the water, no life was lost and nobody hurt. On the pastures of Mr. J. J. Mayes and Mr. Charles Lawrence, on the west side of the river, some cattle were drowned.

STORM AT NORTH GALVESTON.

Several Buildings Wrecked, but No Lives Were Lost.

To the Editor of The Post.

North Galveston, Texas, September 13.—The shore on both sides of Edwards street is strewn with miles of wreckage from Bolivar and points on Trinity bay. A cotton barge belonging probably to the consort of the Louise, is cast up on the north shore of the point and another is stranded on the prairie to the south of the house of Dickinson bayou. There was no fatality connected here of the recent storm. Aside from the wreckage of a few vacant houses by the wind and the partial unroofing of the hotel building little harm was done. Rev. C. P. Dursin, president of the Texas Military Institute, which was wrecked by a tornado recently at Llano, was in town today looking after the interests of the school which he is locating here. The doctor expressed great satisfaction at the apparent immunity of the place from flood, and gave assurance that the school would certainly be established here at an early date. Steps should be taken to secure the property case ashore here against the pilfering of lawless people who are making their appearance along the shore.

Mr. Bradford Hancock, brother of W. J. Hancock of this city, was here yesterday soliciting relief for the sufferers at North Galveston. He says that while no lives were lost several people lost heavily by the destruction of their property.

Suicide at Abilene.

Abilene, Texas, September 13.—At 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Frank Johnson, proprietor of the Shay hotel, Baird, Texas, sent a bullet crashing through his brain. At last accounts Mr. Johnson was living, but it is impossible for him to recover.

This act is a great mystery to his friends as he was in good condition financially and engaged as manager of one of the best hotels in West Texas.
